Piero Atchugarry Gallery: 10 Years

I always ask myself first what I can do for Miami, before thinking what Miami will do for me.

A decade, a project, and a dream. Ten years ago, Piero Atchugarry, a young man, too young for such grand dreams, began outlining the program for a gallery dedicated to contemporary art. With a background in Economics and the desire to create his own space, he aimed to develop an artist program that encompassed his passion for sculpture, as well as the growing interest in conceptual art, painting, sensitive abstraction, and constructive geometry. "I never thought of becoming an artist. I studied Economics in London and later joined the Modern and Contemporary Art program at Christie's in New York, which equipped me with the precise tools to tackle an activity with two well-defined facets: management/efficiency in business administration, and vision in choosing a course of action, a 'personality' as a gallerist and gallery," states Piero.

Piero Atchugarry had his "flash of inspiration" when he realized he needed to start in Uruguay. His homeland, the land of his ancestors, where the Atchugarry name, in various fields, from art and politics to science, created a tradition of quality and a way of doing things. Piero continued his journey with a compass pointed toward the artists who would form the vanguard of his gallery. At the same time, he launched a residency program in Tierra Garzón. Tierra Garzón was the starting point for establishing Pueblo Garzón, where Piero Atchugarry opened his first gallery. From his first steps on Uruguayan soil he projected himself to the world with his presence in international fairs such as ARCO in Madrid, Art Basel Miami Beach, Pinta PARC, Dallas Art Fair, ArtRio, ARPA, SP Arte.

In December 2018, he expanded his horizon and opened a gallery in Miami, renovating a huge 9,000 square foot Warehouse in the heart of the Design District—an area in full expansion for the development of an art, design and fashion market. Why Miami? Atchugarry's response is immediate "Because I think of a destination as a space for development. I always ask myself first what I can do for Miami, before thinking what Miami will do for me. This starting point is really stimulating for everyone, artists, clients and my team." Piero Atchugarry understood that it was "the place to be".

Piero Atchugarry Gallery

In December 2018, with a space established in Garzón, Uruguay, Piero Atchugarry expanded his program to North America to a warehouse in Miami's renowned Design District neighborhood. A 9,000-square-foot art space, the Piero Atchugarry Gallery is committed to supporting and presenting the work of local and international artists with an institutional approach.

Survey Space

Spanning 940 square feet, the Miami Survey exhibition space affords solo and group exhibitions of equal significance at a smaller scale. Highlighting a variety of contemporary and emerging artists, the Survey Space incorporates a more experimental program. On occasion the Gallery's represented artists are invited to showcase an exploratory body of work outside of their usual oeuvre.
